CHECK REIN WAS TOO TIGHT

Witness Would Have Preferred to Be Given a Little Leeway in His Court Testimony.

An aged negro porter, nearly eighty years old, was arrested on some trivial charge, for which he was later discharged. It proved, during the trial, that he had never seen the inside of a court before, and the bundle of events greatly dazed and embarrassed him. As he stood up when his name was called the clerk said forth:

"Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you shall give in this case shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?"

And the negro started back gasping. Then he turned quickly to the bench.

"Witness Briles," he said, for he knew his honor from boyhood in an unofficial capacity, "I've perfectly willin' ter tell de truf, but mus' I be all coched up datter way, in case I might want ter git des a step or two off de road? Hit don't give a man no leeway, suh!"

Testing Quality of Ale.

At one time Shakespeare's father is said to have served as an ale conner or tester. In the olden days the ale conner tested only for sugar, and a musty (and doubtless ale-soaked) chronicler tells us that it was the custom of these testers to enter a tavern, call for a pot "by accident (sic) spill a puddle" on a bench and sit in the puddle for "half an hour by the clock." If the conner could rise with due dignity from his seat, all was well; but woe to the tapster whose ale glued the leather breeches of the tester to the bench—there was sugar in his ale; which brings us, by the well-worn route of anecdote, nearer home.

It has been a long jaunt for the old nag and a far cry from the inventive lye to the alchemical methods of one Harmon Gansevoort who, as a pioneer brewer in Albany, N. Y., is said to have loaned a particular zest to his brew by washing his leather breeches in it. Chacun a son gout. —Exchange.

The Better Judge.

Some years ago the Oldham amateurs were producing one of Handel's oratorios, under the personal tuition and conductorship of the late Sir Charles Halle, relates London Answers. Among the orchestra was the famous and gigantic bassoon player, George Seel of Ashton-under-Lyne. At the final rehearsal Halle went to George and, indicating several bars for the bassoon, told him not to play them on the night of the performance. George was inwardly boiling with indignation, but said nothing. On the night of the performance George played the banned music.

When the affair was over Halle went up to Seel in a great rage and, pointing to the notes, said: "I told you to leave them out, didn't I?"

"Aye, you did," said George, "but Handel told me to put them in, an' he were a better judge than you."

AFRAID TO MARRY.

"Young folks are afraid to get married nowadays," declares Albert Edwin Smith, president of the Ohio Northern university at Ada.

"They claim it is too expensive. In my time it required only $1.25 and a girl who loved you. Now they think the ties would not be binding unless the man goes in debt for a diamond ring.

"I believe young folks should start in and dig together. They can take their wedding trip 25 years later, like my wife and I had to do. It was all the sweeter when it did come because of the struggles we had made," he said.

BECAUSE OF FLOOD.

The virtual wiping out of the town of Valley Park, Mo., by recent floods and the destruction of a large glass plant there has resulted in an addition of about 700 inhabitants to Rossford.

Scores of families from Valley Park have located in the Toledo suburb and there is a great rushing of building to accommodate the influx. The newcomers include not only glassworkers, but carpenters and other mechanics as well as a number of professional men.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To The Ladies Who Dress Well

Dear Madam:—

Have you ever noticed the difference between placing an order for Tailored Suits, Coats or Skirts, or buying Ready-made Garments?

Well, there certainly is quite a difference.

For instance:

When you call at your Tailor you choose a style and cloth you like, but when you buy Ready-made Garments you always find a fault. It's either you don't like the style or the class of goods in the Suit. Then, again, you like the style and not the material. You see, you are "up against it." Whereas, if you place your order with a Tailor you get everything you desire.

The Tailored Garments will always give you more wear and greater satisfaction, as you get the best of trimming with high-grade workmanship for only a small margin more than for a Ready-made Garment.

Prices range from $25.00 to $45.00, and some higher.

For making Suits, from $15.00 and up. Skirts from $5.00 and up.

Yours very truly,

Lack of Education.

You are not really well educated if you do not possess the knowledge which is essential in making a home what it ought to be. The girl who would stand aghast if asked to build a fire in the kitchen range, and would be as helpless to prepare a dinner or iron a shirtwaist, as if she were called upon to translate from the Hebrew, has serious lacks in her education.—Exchange.

Had Right to Be Peeved.

Village Storekeeper (as pastor executes a masterly retreat from his store)—"Dinged old hypocrite! This is the same lead quarter I put in the collection last Sunday!"—Judge.

Importance of Diet.

How you succeed is according to how you work. How you work is according to how you think. How you think is according to how you eat. Not always, but often enough to make it a rule.

Convalescent.

Butler (to Rev. Dr. Priestley)—No, sir, Mr. Baker cannot see you today. He's very sorry indeed, sir, but he's too well now to see any of the clergy. —Life.

When Moving Rugs.

In packing rugs, when moving, I always sprinkle with powdered alum and fold a few moth balls in when rolling them. Then, if not used immediately, as is sometimes the case, there is no danger of their being destroyed by pests.—The Mother's Magazine.

Book of Mormon.

Joseph Smith published his work known as "The Book of Mormon" in the year 1830. He claimed that the work was a transcript, under divine guidance, of certain golden plates buried in central New York, the existence of which had been supernaturally revealed to him by an "angel from heaven."

Hadn't Brought Him Luck.

Mrs. Winkle (meeting him at the door)—"Oh, John, I'm so glad to see you! Baby isn't well. I think there is a bad leak in the boiler. I have the bill for the taxes, the clothesline fell down in the mud, the cat has eaten up the goldfish, and Walter has sprained his ankle, so you must go for the doctor at once. Anything new happen to you today, dearest?" Mr. Winkle—"Nothing worth mentioning except that on my way home I found a four-leaved clover." — Woman's Home Companion.

Imitation Good and Bad.

The instinct to imitate is, like most other instincts, highly serviceable. But it has to be kept under control. Before we yield to it we ought to be sure that what we imitate is good. One of the most pitiful things in the world is to see people imitating what is unworthy under the impression that such imitation seems creditable.
